LABOR UNIONS DENOUNCE NEW TAX MEASURE

Aids Rich, Hits Poor, A. F. of L. Says.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 19.—Demanding the Fordney tax bill on the ground that the measure "lifts the burden from the rich and powerful and puts it on the working people, the wage earners, the men and women of small income," organized labor tonight called on members of the house of representatives to vote for recommitment of the measure when it comes up for final vote in the house tomorrow.

This action was taken by the conference of the legislative representatives of the American Federation of Labor and all of its affiliated and allied organizations. The conference was presided over by Samuel Gompers, president of the federation of labor.

Like Minority Report.
In many respects the statement issued by the labor leaders duplicates the report of the minority members of the ways and means committee. This report, written by Representative Kitchin of North Carolina, ranking Democrat on the committee, who is ill at his home in North Carolina, was filed with the house late today by Representative Oldfield, Democrat [Ark.].

Mr. Kitchin denounced what he termed "the two principal provisions of the Republican tax program"—repeal of the excess profits tax and the substitution of a 2½ per cent increase in the corporation income tax and elimination of the surtax income rates in excess of $2 per cent.

The North Carolina member declared repeal of the profits tax would be "an absolute surrender to and obedience of the will and command of the big corporate interests and one of the most vicious pieces of legislation that was ever proposed or advocated openly by any public man since the beginning of the government."

Statement Made by Labor.
The statement issued by the leaders of labor said:

"Labor, through its legislative representatives, gathered in special session to consider the pending tax legislation, calls upon members of congress to vote on Saturday for recommitment of taxation legislation which is now up for vote at 3 o'clock.

"The measure as it will come before the house lifts the burden from the rich and powerful—from the 15,000 millionaires and the great corporations—interacts—and puts it on the working people, the wage earners, the men and women of small incomes."

Wants Surtax to Stay.
Noting that the surtax, the excess profits tax, and the graduated increase of the higher brackets of the income tax, all of which have been killed in the bill as it now stands, should be retained, the statement continues:

"The leaders in congress are not losing faith with the people. They can keep faith only by revising the tax measure, a measure admittedly a patchwork and clearly devised to favor the rich and the powerful corporations.

"Marvelous are the ways of the Lord!" remarked the Rev. T. H. Nelson, pastor of the Independence church of Zion City. The Rev. Nelson is anti-Volva. The storm had knocked down nine of the eleven signs newly erected by Volva.

Makes Solemn Protest.
The fire department, unable to take care of all the calls for help that came in, turned over most of them to the pipe extension bureau. No casualties as a result of lightning or from other causes were reported.

RAIN, LIGHTNING STORM SWEEPS CITY FOR HOURS

Basements Flooded in Every Section.

Chicago's rain and electrical storm that began early last evening and continued far past midnight flooded hundreds of basements in all parts of the city. It inundated viaducts under railroad tracks, tying up surface line transportation. Its lightning caused scores of fires, east, west and north. It drenched unwary motorists and pedestrians who had started their homeward voyage under a blue sky.

After a few hours of heavy downpour, water under the Pennsylvania railroad's viaducts at 47th, 58th and 63rd streets rolled up to a height of two and one-half feet. Street cars were unable to make headway through the flood, and were consequently tied up for blocks.

Rafts, hastily constructed, ferried passengers across the water at 57th street. A motorist, misjudging the depth, stalled his car in midstream. Similar mishaps were reported on the north side, under Northwestern viaducts.

North and Northwest Sides Suffer.
North and northwest side basements suffered most from the storm. Edgewater, Rogers Park, and Ravenswood citizens spent half the night bailing out the lower portions of their apartments and residences, as the drains proved inadequate to carry off the water. The fire department was summoned in numerous instances, to render pumping aid.

Mrs. Lena Peters, 4031 Broadway, fled upstairs to escape the roiling chairs, tables, and beds that floated about in the several feet of water. W. H. Foster, 1050 Foster avenue, spokesman for his neighbors, reported feverish bailing activities. The water stood two feet deep in the basement flat of N. Grimm, 851 Cornelius avenue, and in that of the Ravenswood hospital.

When the wires at Diversey parkway and Elston avenue crashed to the ground the whole northwest side spent the rest of the night in darkness. Oak Park and River Forest citizens went to bed early rather than sit up lightless.

Police Station Cells Flooded.

The cells of the Englewood police station are in the basement. Cries from the prisoners brought the police below. They found their guests clinging to the bars to escape drowning. The inmates were removed to the South Englewood station.

Still fire alarms were sent from 504 North Ridgeway avenue, 1334 Cuyler avenue, 4650 North Kedzie avenue, 6317 Glenwood avenue, 23d street and St. Louis avenue, and scores of other addresses. No particularly damaging fires were reported, however.

Motorists in the short streets north of Sheridan road and Broadway splashed through several feet of water getting to their garages. One fat man was seen navigating the treacherous boulevards. As a safeguard he removed shoes and stockings, rolled his trousers to his knees, and continued in safety. It was great stuff for the kids. They piled out in bathing suits and frolicked in the pools created where the water had backed up.

Police Resort to Candles.

Deek sergeants at the Cragin and the Irving Park police station bound their prisoners by candlelight. Sergeant William Bowles and Operator Bernard Kelly of Cragin kept from colliding in the dark by yodeling at one another while they moved.

The fire department, unable to take care of all the calls for help that came in, turned over most of them to the pipe extension bureau. No casualties as a result of lightning or from other causes were reported.

Becker told the police he was a member of the International Association of Shoe Repairmen and that there had been trouble between that organization and the United Shoe Repairmen of Illinois.

Many Shot As
Knoxville Mob
Attacks Jail

Knoxville, Tenn., Aug. 19.—Twenty-seven persons were wounded tonight when deputies guarding the Knox county jail fired on a crowd which sought Frank Martin, a Negro, held as a suspect in a criminal assault on a county school teacher. All of the wounded are white. Two are women. Deputy Sheriff Charles Lewis was wounded by a shot from the crowd.

Although the machine gun company of the 117th infantry, Tennessee National guard, was on duty at the jail, the mob did not open fire.

Following reports that the school teacher had identified Martin as her assailant, crowds gathered in the vicinity of the jail. Two hundred men and boys approached the jail, while several hundred other persons, many of whom were women, in the courthouse yard, watched. As the crowd came within 100 feet Sheriff Cate demanded that they disperse. He gave warning that an imaginary line should not be crossed.

Shooting Becomes General.

As a dozen men passed these poles, the sheriff fired a riot gun over the heads of the crowd. Two men in the courthouse yard and two or three in the street fired revolvers in reply. The shooting then became general.

Many of the loads of buckshot fired by the officers went among spectators in the courthouse yard. Some of the wounded are suffering from revolver and rifle shots.

The crowd in the street ran back, and the deputies charged, firing until the crowd dispersed and fled.

Later a large detachment of police appeared and ordered all automobiles from within a radius of two blocks of the jail. The local troop of national guard cavalry was mobilized.

On Aug. 20, 1919, the Knox county jail was stormed and dynamited by a mob.

FEAR EASTERN RIOT

Barnstable, Mass., Aug. 19.—Two machine guns were set up here about the jail by twenty artillerymen who arrived from the national guard summer camp at West Barnstable late tonight to aid Sheriff Rosenthal to guard three Negroes who are under arrest charged with highway robbery and criminal assault on a young white woman he's earlier in the week.

The troops came after the sheriff had appealed for the additional protection when he learned that a mob of Negroes was forming to rescue the prisoners and another mob of whites were getting ready to repeat their attempt to lynch the suspects, John Dies, Benjamin Gomez, and Joseph Andrews.

The white mob of 200 men and women made an attempt earlier in the day to get the prisoners.

The Negroes have been identified by Miss Gertrude Butler and William Eddredge as the men who held them up and criminally assaulted the young woman. Dies and Gomez have been held in $15,000 bail and the third was held in $10,000 bail.

Must Look Ahead.

In view of the fact the house is about to separate, and we cannot conceal from ourselves the fact that very disquieting statements have been made, we are bound as a responsible government to take stock of all possible contingencies.

The premier went on to say the first contingency is the possibility of an agreement in which case they would have to thrash out the details, which would take time. But if the offer definitely was rejected, it would be "an unmistakable challenge to the authority of the government and to the unity of the empire, and no party in the state could possibly pass that without notice," he said.

In Case of Rejection.

If there is rejection and final rejection beyond hope of negotiations, steps would undoubtedly have to be taken which the executive couldn't and wouldn't take without first consulting parliament.

"If on Oct. 18 an agreement is not reached, or if the negotiations are proceeding satisfactorily, then the house will meet only for the purely formal act of prorogation. If on the other hand the negotiations break down and the position is hopeless, then the speaker will be authorized after consultation with his majesty's government on very short notice—forty-eight hours, I think—to summon parliament."

The premier ended by saying that despite disquieting facts, he hopes reason will prevail and that the Irish leaders will not reject the largest measure of freedom ever offered their country, and take the responsibility of renewing the conflict which would be robbed of all its glory and all gratitude by its overshadowing calamity.

Herbert Asquith and J. H. Thomas supported the premier's motion and approved the government's Irish offer.

Lord Curzon in moving adjournment of the house of lords also emphasized the government has kept nothing back and had gone the limit in concessions.

"If Ireland refuses the British government will accept the challenge and

LONDON, Aug. 19.—"If the present negotiations collapse Great Britain will find herself committed to hostilities on a scale never previously undertaken against Ireland," declared Baron Birkenhead, the lord chancellor, in an address in the house of lords today. "It would be disastrous if those to whom the government's offer was sent do not recognize that it was the government's last word and compromise," he said.

BY JOHN STEELE.
(Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.)

LONDON, Aug. 19.—The government views of the present state of affairs in Ireland were outlined this afternoon by Prime Minister Lloyd George and Lord Curzon, foreign minister, speaking almost simultaneously to both houses of parliament.

The statements were made in moving for adjournment of parliament until Oct. 18, which was decided on at a privy council held by the king at 3 o'clock this morning.

Statement of Lloyd George.

In moving for adjournment of parliament the premier said the government has put all its Irish cards on the table in its offer to Eamon de Valera "because of its importance ranging on the side of our proposals all the same opinion not merely of this country and Ireland, but throughout the world. I have not heard a suggestion from any quarter of this country or from any part of the world, excepting Ireland, that in these proposals we have not gone to the very limit of our concessions."

"I have heard the criticism that we have gone too far. Therefore I want to make it clear that we did not put forward what I call haggling terms; we put forward everything we thought it possible to concede in order to purchase peace and good will. In Ireland itself, so far as I can see, the doubt is not as much as to terms as to what the offer means. That is the question to be worked out by explanation, elucidation, and elaboration. The outlines cannot be altered nor the basis changed."

BATTLESHIP AIRCRAFT EXPERTS

Army and Navy Bombing

(BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT)
Washington, D. C., Aug. 19.—[Special.]—President Harding has asked Director Forbes of the veterans' bureau to have experts study and report within ten days on the practicability of turning one or more of the cantonments owned by the government into huge rehabilitation and vocational training camps for ex-service men.

The request was made following discussion of the subject by the cabinet at its meeting today. The problem of rehabilitating disabled soldiers is one in which the President has taken a deep interest, and it was his suggestion that the cantonments might be utilized for rehabilitation purposes on a gigantic scale.

It was brought out in the cabinet discussion that the nation faced the prospect of rehabilitating from 100,000 to 200,000 ex-service men, and of training them in their own pursuits in life.

Washington and the country could best benefit if the President had been turning over in his mind and he thought of the cantonments acquired at the outbreak of the war as possible sites for the establishment of rehabilitation and vocational centers.

The suggestion was made that one cantonment be taken first and fitted out as an experiment where about 10,000 ex-service men could be cared for and trained for the life work. The cantonment would be fitted with shops and training schools adequate to the requirements of the men.

U. S. TAX MUDDLE BRANDED TRADE REVIVAL'S BRAKE

Hand of Politics Is Thrust Into Congress' Work.

BY ARTHUR M. EVANS.

Taxation is fast becoming a burning issue. In its economic aspects it is rousing great discussion and is being passed as perhaps the foremost question in the political field at the present moment. In its political phases—well, some of the politicians seem preparing for a war dance around the bonfire, hoping to make another Armageddon of it.

The motion to adjourn until Oct. 18 unless summoned before was carried by both houses. The government's attitude is that the issue still is in the balance and might be affected by rash acts or words by either side, so it is awaiting the official Sinn Fein reply.

DUBLIN QUIETS DOWN

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

Copyright: 1921. By the Chicago Tribune.]

DUBLIN, Aug. 19.—Excitement over Dail Eireann quieted down today and only a few committee meetings were held in Mansion House, Mr. de Valera left Dublin tonight to spend a weekend at Blackrock, planning to return Sunday night. There will be many committee meetings tomorrow and a full meeting of Dail Eireann to consider the peace terms on Monday. It is reported here that the moderate party is favoring acceptance, but all such rumors are untrustworthy in a city like Dublin.

SUPPORT FOR DE VALERA.

Two cablegrams on the Irish situation were sent from Chicago yesterday in behalf of the Recognition of the Irish Republic. One to Eamon de Valera, leader of the Irish republicans, said:

"The American Association for the Recognition of the Irish Republic, representing one million American citizens, hall with joy and admiration your splendid declaration of Tuesday and Wednesday last. We renew our pledge of moral and financial support to the limit, in peace or war."

The other message, to Premier David Lloyd George in London, said:

"You are clinging to the principle of self-determination as the main issue in the great war. The Irish people insist on the application of this principle to their country. Our soldiers have died for this principle. We, the American Association for the Recognition of the Irish Republic, representing one million American citizens in forty-eight states and relatives of those who have died, demand that you keep your pledge."

The messages were signed by Thomas W. Lyons, national secretary of the association.

'ROOSEVELT THE CHILD' NEW BOOK BY MRS. STORER

PARIS, Aug. 19.—Mrs. Bellamy Storer has published for private circulation a book which in large part relates to her connection with Theodore Roosevelt over efforts by her husband, Bishop Ireland made a cardinal—a controversy which gained wide attention through publication of the so-called "Dear Maria" letters. The edition is limited to 100 copies.

Entitled "Theodore Roosevelt, the Child," the book, after giving anecdotes of Mr. Roosevelt in various stages of his career, and making such deductions as his characteristics as the title of the book implies, quotes from letters by him to his wife and her husband, discussing the advisability of the red hat for the archbishop. The earliest letter relating to the Archbishop Ireland incident was written when Mr. Roosevelt was governor of New York.

TENANT LEAGUE GIRD TO FIGHT BOOTS IN RENT

More than 1,000 protesting householders—or in excess of fifty a day—have thus far during August complained to the Chicago Tenants' Protective League of threatened rent increases, ranging from 15 to 30 per cent. E. A. Potter, league manager, reported last night.

"They are all prepared to fight and lick the landlords," Mr. Potter added. "We are advising all to serve notice that they will not vacate Oct. 1, and that they will pay no higher rent. We will carry every case to the Appellate court, if necessary."

GIVE MEMORIAL CONCERT FOR CHICAGO WAR HERO

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 19.—Two wills said to have been executed by John D. Spreckels Jr., who died following a recent auto accident, were made public late yesterday by attorneys representing Mrs. Sadie Wirt Spreckels, his widow. Late Wednesday John D. Spreckels Sr., who granted letters of administration of the estate of his son by the Superior court, it was said no will had been found. The documents offered were ones dated Aug. 4, 1908, giving the entire estate of nearly $2,000,000 to his former wife, Edith Wakefield Spreckels, and their children; another dated Dec. 1, 1915, gave a third to Mrs. Sadie Spreckels, and divided the remainder among his children.

REWARDING AN ALLY.

Lloyd George says: "There was a real test of the (Japanese) alliance in the late war and none who watched what happened could come to any other conclusion than that it was loyal and faithfully interpreted and carried out by our Japanese allies."

Perhaps the remark is less significantly phrased than appears, but it recalls the time when there was considerable doubt of Japanese intentions.

Those "who watched what happened" finally discovered that Japan remained on the winning side. But during the process of "watching what happened" there was, among the public at least, no such certainty of Japan's "loyalty," and there was a rather prevalent feeling that discretion or self-interest was shrewdly tempering her valor. Japanese statesmanship was at any rate too wise to draw premature conclusions, as Bulgaria did, and under the influence of temporary German successes back the wrong horse.

Mr. Lloyd George's praise of Japan may be diplomatic and official, but associated as it is with the renewal of the Japanese alliance, Americans will be interested. Watching what happened, Americans have observed that Japanese "loyalty" seems to have been very liberally compensated. At Paris she was handed one of the richest provinces in China and all the islands of the sea held by Germany north of the equator, including the cable station of Yap, which Mr. Wilson thought he had reserved for the protection of our communications with Asia. The Shantung present was made over the American protest, finally withdrawn by the American representative, who happened to be more interested in his own utopian or egotistic projects than in American interests.

We do not know the secrets of Downing street and Japan may have rendered services to the British empire in Asia of which we know nothing. But in "watching what happened" we saw Japan take a great Chinese territory and keep it. We saw the Japanese navy assist the search for a German commerce destroyer at large in the Pacific, though it was an Australian cruiser that found it. We saw a few Japanese destroyers in the Mediterranean. The taking of Tsing-tau cost Japan 479 killed and 1,282 wounded.

Now, Mr. Lloyd George may consider that this is a picture of noble deeds calling for further tribute and substantial reward in the way of a continuing alliance. But it does not look that way to such Americans as are watching what happens rather than accepting parliamentary rhetoric about Anglo-American friendship. The United States lost 75,000 men and it gets the tribute of English sneers. The United States sent 2,000,000 fighting men to France; they got there in time to save the allies from defeat, but we are told by the English that we came late. The war cost us about $22,000,000,000, and in addition we loaned nearly $10,000,000,000 to the allies, the interest on which we are remitting and the principal of which we have been invited to forego.

Japan's "loyalty," which Mr. Lloyd George celebrates and proposes further to reward, has been one of the most profitable ventures in the history of the empire. For keeping her treaty pledges, for not betraying her ally, she has been loaded with riches and power. America had no pledges to keep, no allies to betray, and for thirty billions of money and 75,000 dead her material reward is a weakened strategic position in the Pacific, uncollectible loans, and a staggering national debt. Her moral reward so far as our associates in the war are concerned seems to be an ill concealed dislike and a process of disparagement which will presently prove to their own satisfaction that the American contribution was a hindrance to allied victory.

HOW CONGRESS HELPED PRIZE FIGHTING.

New Jersey permits prize fighting and the showing of fight pictures. New York permits fighting and the showing of fight pictures. Illinois uses its police power, inherent in the state, and prohibits prize fighting, or pretends to do so. The states have different ways of handling this question and they suit themselves.

The federal law, which does not say whether a state may allow prize fights or not or whether it may show fight pictures, says that the pictures taken in a state where fights are held shall not be taken across the line into another state where fights are held.

Spectators may go across the line to see the fight itself, but the pictures of the fight may not be taken across to the spectators. Tex Rickard, who loves a soldier, was fine in New York for violating the federal law and now is free to collect money there with the pictures, with the sanction of state law. He has brought the pictures to Chicago, for the soldiers, and has been arrested. We do not know what will happen to him here, but he may find a way to release the film without going to jail as the price of the release.

This federal law probably will be a favorite for a long time with students as revealing the vagaries of a popular assemblage playing hit and miss with the principles of its own government, but if congress ever learns what the actual enforcement of the statute accomplishes the congressmen may repeat it.

It is a protection of honest prize fighting. If the big money were in the pictures, the fights would be faked, dramatized, and hippodromed for the pictures. The promoters would make a good picture and not a good fight. There may be enough crookedness in fight promotion now, but if promoters could send the pictures all over the country there would not be one square fight to ten square wrestling matches.

Congress helped the game and did not know it.

MODERNIZING OUR DEFENSE.

When Pershing went to France in 1917 he took a handful of men with him, practically a personal staff. Before him was the tremendous executive task of creating the directive mechanism of a great modern army. No other commander had to do that in the great war. No commander ought to be compelled to do it. When a nation may be called on to put millions of men in the field, the necessary arrangements should be made in peace time. They cannot properly be improvised, yet Gen. Pershing had virtually to improvise the organization of the A. E. F.

If civilians will give thought to what the problem of caring for and directing the movement of two million men involves, they will still far short of realizing its vast complexities and difficulties, but they may reach some basis for estimating the folly of unpreparedness in this direction.

Fortunately we were saved from a fiasco and American troops were able to add a decisive weight to the strength of the allies before it was too late. But that was because the American commander happened to be not only a good soldier but a remarkable executive, because American life cultivates initiative and skill in improvisation, and finally because the allied armies, especially the French, had working organizations from which we might model our own.

But Pershing had to build from the beginning and in so doing he had to deplete the general staff at home. We were far short of trained men for staff work.

Gen. Pershing, with his assistant chief of staff, Maj. Gen. Harbord, has drawn about him in Washington some of the men who helped to create and operate the higher organization of the A. E. F. and they have worked out a reorganization of the general staff of the army which embodies recent experience and will provide an organization that will meet the situation of war. The next commander, if we have to fight, will not be compelled to lay the foundation of an army in the field. A general staff will be ready for him in framework and expansion may be conducted in an orderly and expeditious manner. Experiments in personnel, questions of jurisdiction and function and authority will be reduced to a minimum.

In short, another important step has been taken in the organization of a modern military establishment capable of functioning in war. Our practice in the past has been to organize our military establishment for peace. This has not proved fatal in past wars because of fortunate conditions, the weakness of our enemy or the strength of our allies. We cannot expect such luck always and modern war-making, we ought to know, is not improvised any more than continental railroad systems are nations themselves. Our theory of meeting war is that of rapid expansion from a skeleton force to a volunteer army. But we have never established an efficient skeleton or an efficient process of expansion. We are fortunate in having now a secretary of war who was educated at Annapolis and has therefore a conception of military principles which our civilian secretaries usually lack. Added to this he is a successful man of business and knows what administrative organization requires. He has called to be his military adviser the man who had the gigantic burden of organizing the A. E. F. and proved to be equal to the task. Gen. Pershing in turn has called upon men who helped him and have a fund of invaluable experience. From this situation there is every reason to be confident a modern organization of defense will be achieved.

We do not know the secrets of Downing street and Japan may have rendered services to the British empire in Asia of which we know nothing. But in "watching what happened" we saw Japan take a great Chinese territory and keep it. We saw the Japanese navy assist the search for a German commerce destroyer at large in the Pacific, though it was an Australian cruiser that found it. We saw a few Japanese destroyers in the Mediterranean. The taking of Tsing-tau cost Japan 479 killed and 1,282 wounded.

Now, Mr. Lloyd George may consider that this is a picture of noble deeds calling for further tribute and substantial reward in the way of a continuing alliance. But it does not look that way to such Americans as are watching what happens rather than accepting parliamentary rhetoric about Anglo-American friendship. The United States lost 75,000 men and it gets the tribute of English sneers. The United States sent 2,000,000 fighting men to France; they got there in time to save the allies from defeat, but we are told by the English that we came late. The war cost us about $22,000,000,000, and in addition we loaned nearly $10,000,000,000 to the allies, the interest on which we are remitting and the principal of which we have been invited to forego.

Japan's "loyalty," which Mr. Lloyd George celebrates and proposes further to reward, has been one of the most profitable ventures in the history of the empire. For keeping her treaty pledges, for not betraying her ally, she has been loaded with riches and power. America had no pledges to keep, no allies to betray, and for thirty billions of money and 75,000 dead her material reward is a weakened strategic position in the Pacific, uncollectible loans, and a staggering national debt. Her moral reward so far as our associates in the war are concerned seems to be an ill concealed dislike and a process of disparagement which will presently prove to their own satisfaction that the American contribution was a hindrance to allied victory.

"Yes, he's shore to be young," said the clairvoyant. Whereupon Mrs. Jackson clasped the fortune teller's hands and pressed them hard.

GROWING OLD!
When the morning calls us early,
And the day
Seems to find us somewhat surly,
With the way
Losing fast its old-time charm,
Is there reason for alarm?
When we crave more time for leisure,
Caring less and less for gold,
Is it just the way it happens?
Or, perhaps, we're growing old!

Well, we don't intend to worry,
If that's true;
We shall not lament, or hurry
What's to do.
We shall greet each new born day
In the same old happy way;
We shall meet our round of duties
As the days to us are doled,

Thankful, cheerful—seldom tearful—
Though—perhaps—we're growing old.

JAPS BEAT INDIA AND PASS INTO DAVIS CUP FINAL

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

The rising sun climbed nearer the zenith in International tennis yesterday, when Ichiba Kumagae and Zenzo Shimizu of Japan won their Davis cup doubles match from India on the turf courts at the Onwentsia club, Lake Forest, and thereby qualified for the final round of the Davis cup series against Australasia at Newport next week.

Kumagae and Shimizu defeated Dr. A. H. Fyze and L. S. Deane of India. The Indians nearly obscured the rising sun by winning two of the five sets, and they clouded things materially after the second set, but the darts of the fiery Japs pierced through to victory. The Indian's blindfold of placement drives and cross court chop shots just as soon as the big break came in the first game of the fifth set. The scores of the match were 6-1, 4-6, 2-6, 6-4, and 6-0.

Age Winners of Match.

Japan's victory decided the Davis cup play in her favor, as it represented the necessary third match in the series of five. Notwithstanding this, the two remaining events in singles will be played this afternoon.

The Australasian-Japanese final, which is the next step in the Davis cup series, then will send the survivor against America's defending championship team in the challenge round at Forest Hills, N. Y., the first week in September.

The four sets of the Indian players reached their perihelion in the third and fourth sets, when Fyze and Deane indicated advance judgment of their latent strength in doubles by going the Japs a bit better in speed, net play, and placing, and carrying off both sets. The stress of the supreme effort left the Indians with only a thin shred of reserve in the fifth and decisive set, and the Japs—little, gritty terrors of the court—sprung upon the opening, took it till the shreds of opposition were dead, and won the match with a final score of 6-1.

India's Players Open Strong.

For four of the sets the Indians opened by winning the first game. Three of these sets it was on the Indians' own service. But the other two were all the Indians could gain in the first and second sets, for although Fyze was playing stanchly, Deane was not warmed to the point of combatting opposition of such class as the Japs, and his string of losing points proved costly.

In the third set, which Deane opened with a love game on his own service, the tall English born member of the Indian team was "right." He was the dominant figure for games at a stretch through the third and fourth sets, his overhead work being superior to the Japs and his long reach and punching volleys making his side of the court impregnable. Fyze seconded him in the fifth set, but Deane cut out at times to make sturdy recovery of anything the Nipponese might slip through and shedding their volleys at the net with a rattling fusillade of returns when the fluctuating play drew the Indian team toward the baseline.

Japs Find Opposition Strong.

Kumagae and Shimizu sought with stoutness to break up this sudden, energetic attack, but their lofty lobes were unable to keep the Indians in the rear court and their tries at passing sets met a stone wall.

But fortune, which had seconded the same, uphill battle of the underdog in the third and fourth sets, executed a safe face at the start of the fifth. The Indians had succeeded in starting each of the preceding four sets by winning the first game. The tide turned brought Deane to the service line for another good start. But Deane cut out the return of his service on the first point and the ever ready Kumagae made a sparkling placement of the second.

The physical strain of the pace in the third and fourth sets brought wrinkles of weariness into Deane's face, and, although the Indians tried hard by devoting the game four times, they could not win it and the Japs were started again. The rest of the set was stamped.

Business is what you make it

[And many business men are making it GOOD!]

EHEAR so much about "readjustment" and the "economic situation," and see so many charts that are supposed to prove that business is bad and can't help being bad, that many of us overlook the simple fact that business could be a whole lot worse!

The fact is, business is what you make it.

If you feel in your heart that we must go through a post-war purging before things straighten out again, you will certainly go through the purging.

But if you, like other successful business men, adopt an aggressive policy, put every ounce of stuff you've got on the ball, and go after business, business with you will be good!

The Chicago Evening American finds it that way. It was so in June when we GAINED in advertising while all our evening competitors showed heavy losses.

It was so again in July, when the Chicago Evening American showed a loss of only six columns, practically breaking even, while all other evening newspapers counted their losses in hundreds of columns.

For a fact, business is what you make it—and the Chicago Evening American has been making it GOOD.

M ATBE it is and maybe it isn't. What is it? Why, stranger than fiction—truth, you know. In this picture it isn't, because there is no truth from beginning to end, and the story is full of strangeness.

It's a movie within a movie. Diane Dexel, bored member of the idle rich, is afflicted with cinemania, or something like that, and spends her time producing moving pictures for her own consumption. We first see Diane's "set" viewing a home made edition of "Carmen," with Diane in the title role. When this is over, Diane orders the operator to run off her latest picture, "Stranger than Fiction."

And right here they take liberties with us. They tell us that the performance is interrupted by the arrival of part of the gang of the greatest underworld king, the Black Heart, who after extinguishing the lights makes off with all the necklaces and watches in Diane's audience.

The story moves rapidly from here. We are shown how Diane's suitor, a do-nothing, starts out as a police detective to trap the Black Heart in his hair; how Diane, disguised herself with a black wig, a vocabulary of slang, and a stick of chewing gum, joins the Black Heart's gang, steals her own diamonds, and finally, in a spectacular aeroplane pursuit, aids her lover in the destruction of the criminal.

Well, as you have guessed, all that was not true but fiction. For there is Diane's moving picture operator grinding out the final scene, and the audience rises to congratulate Diane and her leading man, who is not a suitor, but a husband.

It's a great picture. The sets are fine, the photography is good, it's well directed, and Katherine MacDonald would make a far less interesting film worth going to, for she is beautiful and a talented actress.

Also, there's Wesley Barry—that speaks for itself.

CLOSEUPS

Three new stars have been added to William Fox's collection: Jack Gilbert, Barbara Bedford, and Maurice Flynn. They are all busy now at the studio. Jack Gilbert will appear in a Virginia story, "In Calvert's Valley." Miss Bedford will be in "The Little Field of the Ozarks," and Mr. Flynn will play a heroic part in "The Real Man."

Edith Storey has perfect hands. Artists and sculptors say so, and she has posed for them many a time. If you want perfect hands you must have tapering ones. Hers are.

DORIS BLAKE'S ANSWERSHe Doesn't Write.

"Dear Miss Blake: I have been keeping company with a young man for a year. He lives in a distant city and I do not get to see him often. He is respectable in every sense and is liked by everybody. He asked me to marry him, but I am young and feel that I have plenty of time.

"Now, Miss Blake, this is where I need your advice. I was visiting in my city, and while there he showed me a good time. When I was going home he said he wished he could go with me. Well, I wrote a letter to him when I arrived home—and later I received a card from him. That is over a month ago, and I have not heard from him since.

"This worries me, as he has always been prompt in answering. I am almost sure that there is no other girl in the case. He is coming here in a few weeks and I was wondering if I should ask him his reason for not writing or just let it pass by.

SENATOR URGES A RECEIVER FOR SHIPPING BOARD

Both Sides Rap Marine Policy of U. S.

(By A STAFF CORRESPONDENT)

Washington, D. C., Aug. 19.—[Special]—Demands for a redefinition of the administration's merchant marine policy, and charges of corruption, incompetency and wild extravagance in the $3,000,000 shipping fiasco, greeted the $45,000,000 shipping board deficiency bill when it was called up in the senate today.

The debate was regarded as the forerunner of a determined effort later on to recall the shipping board and, in the words of Senator King of Utah, "to appoint a receiver to wind up the affairs of the bankrupt concern, take our losses and charge it off."

Have Reply for Democrats.

Democratic senators attempted to make political capital of the shipping situation Senator Lodge, Republican leader, and Senator McCormick of Illinois, retaliated by reminding them that the financial plight of the shipping board was entirely a legacy from the Wilson administration. Senator Lodge declared that the problem before Chairman Lasker and his associates on the shipping board was how to get rid of the unfortunate condition they inherited from their predecessors.

The controversy began when Senator Harrison of Mississippi, Democrat, proposed an amendment to restore the house provision designed to prohibit the payment of salaries above $12,000 a year in the shipping administration.

Questions Dawes' Statements.

He charged that Budget Director Dawes was issuing misleading statements regarding his economy accomplishments, but predicted he would not be able to prove his point.

In a speech, Chairman Lasker for engaging assistants and experts at salaries which, he declared, were exorbitant, and asserted that many of the attorneys now on the shipping board's legal staff had been recommended by New York law firms having claims pending before the board.

Senator Williams of Mississippi, Democrat, sharply criticized Chairman Lasker. He declared that Lasker ought to be "picked out of office" because he had been unable to furnish congress with an accounting of the shipping board's financial situation.

Defend Lasker Rule.

Other senators, rising to Mr. Lasker's defense, declared that the previous administration had left the accounts in such a muddled condition that it was next to impossible to furnish an accurate account.

Senator Poincexter of Washington, Republican, pointed out that the value of the merchant shipping fleet was estimated at about $750,000,000 and said that the cost of maintaining the board's operation last year amounted to about $50,000,000. He characterized this situation as "the most preposterous thing in the annals of our government."

The session ended without action and the debate will be renewed tomorrow.

RAIL UNIONS WIN FIGHT FOR EXTRA OVERTIME WAGE

Union labor's contention for time and one-half pay for overtime work was upheld yesterday by the United States railroad labor board in a decision which, however, provided for important exceptions that railway officials noted with satisfaction.

The exceptions—one denying the time and one-half rate to men regularly assigned to necessary Sunday and holiday work—removed the first dissenting opinion that has been made public since the board was formed a year and a half ago.

A. O. Wharton, former president of the railway employees department of the American Federation of Labor submitted the minority opinion. He is one of three labor representatives on the board.

AUTO TOLL ROAD TO MILWAUKEE, PLAN OF BROKER

Alfred E. Case of Channel Lake, Ill., president of Case, Boyd & Co., brokers, of Chicago, announced yesterday that he is having plans drawn for a private automobile highway 200 feet wide connecting Chicago and Milwaukee, with byways leading to the Wisconsin country.

Mr. Case's plan calls for six road beds of concrete surfaced with asphalt, with all vehicles on each road moving in the same direction. Two of the roads would be used for passenger bus service, on an express schedule; two operated as toll roads for private passengers, and two as right roads.

$5,000,000 committee has been organized. Mr. Case said with an authorized bond issue of $10,000,000.

SENATE SLASHES $25,000,000 FROM GOOD ROADS CASH

Washington, D. C., Aug. 19.—By a vote of 25 to 22 the senate today adopted an amendment to the federal aid road bill reducing from $100,000,000 to $75,000,000 the amount available for construction in the next year.

The bill, appropriating $75,000,000 for construction, one-third of which would normally be available, was passed today by the senate.

The balance of the general fund would be available in six months.

The bill places federal aid under the secretary of agriculture, who may expend not more than 60 per cent of the appropriation upon interstate roads and the remainder upon intercounty roads. A sliding scale is provided for federal aid in states with unappropriated public land.
